New Dr. Swift School Aids Record Building Increase

LAC LA BICHE — Building permits issued from the town office this year show a marked increase over the same period in 1960. In 1960 the permits issued for dwelling houses amounted to $30,650, and total permits to August 1 were $57,400.

In the current year permits for dwellings amount to $129,700 and other permits bring the total to $326,700 for an increase of $269,300 over last year's figures.

The Lac la Biche School Division has plans for a new school to replace the Dr. Swift High School which was destroyed by fire, but the permit has not yet been issued. This structure will bring the total to a figure undoubtedly the highest in the history of the town for any one year.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a floor-length wedding gown of lace and net over silk. The bodice featured a scoop neckline and lily-point sleeves. A double crown of sequins held in place her chapel veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of red and white roses.

The bride's attendants included Mrs. Rose Wowk, sister of the bride, as bride's matron, Anne Paskar, sister of the bride, Martha Martyniuk, cousin of the groom, Victoria Kortosky, niece of the bride, and Lily Ratsoy. They wore identical gowns of blue and turquoise chiffon with matching headpieces.

Official Opening Of New Auction Rings At Edmonton Stockyards

The Alberta Country Life is carrying a Special Section this week, marking this important event, and it will provide informative and factual information for all our readers.

McMurray Editorial

Mounting juvenile crime is of grave concern to Alberta parents. Those in the town of McMurray are no different from others who want to see their children "go straight." On August 22, they will have an opportunity to do something about it.

The McMurray council would like to have the citizens at a public meeting on that date at 8 p.m., in the town office. The question of what they wish in the proposed recreation centre is the main subject. The council has obtained the land and grants are available from the government. It now needs the interest of the local people.

Dear Sir:

I was pleased to see letters in your paper from "ratepayer" and His Worship the Mayor and others on matters of interest to our town people. I would like to take the opportunity to express my humble views on a subject which I believe has been given too little attention.

What is being done to build up a real park in Lac la Biche? Didn't the Town Council receive a grant from the government which was to be used for this purpose? Where is the money being spent? Why can't Lac la Biche have a park worthy of the name? Isn't it high time someone got busy and at least started a planned orderly park in this town so blessed with natural beauty? We go on year after year with nothing being done along that line. When are we going to start? I wonder if I am alone in my views.

Vegetables are vital to health — Why? Vegetables help to build strong bones and teeth, healthy tissues and good blood. Vegetables help to prevent constipation and they give energy and strength.

B. McCutcheon

How much? One serving of potatoes and at least two servings of other vegetables; green or yellow often and raw vegetables frequently.

How many vegetables do you know? Listed below are 45 vegetables grown in Alberta. How many do you grow? How many do you eat regularly?

A Horticultural Folder may be obtained from this office listing the varieties of vegetables recommended for growing in your section of the province.

Artichoke, Asparagus, Beans, green, wax, shell or dry, Beans, soy Beets, Beet greens, Broccoli, Brussel Sprouts, Cabbage, chinese, savoy, white, red, Cauliflower, Celeriac, Celery, Chives, Corn, Chard, Dandelion Greens, Egg-Plant, Kohlrabi, Kale, Lambs' Quarters, Lettuce, Leeks, Mushrooms, Onions, Parsley, Parsnips, Peas, Peppers, Pumpkins, Radish, Rutabags, Squash, Hubbard, Summer Turnip, Turnip, Tomato, Vegetable Marrow.

It is important to select a variety of vegetables. Some contain more of certain vitamins and minerals than others. If our choice is wide and not limited to a few, we assure ourselves of getting more of those vitamins and minerals so essential to health.

The average Canadian doesn't eat enough vegetables. Why? Often it is not so much the fault of the vegetables as the fault of the cook. To encourage your family to eat a variety of vegetables, you must be sure that they are cooked to be attractive and tasty. Methods which produce the most appetizing dishes are also those which preserve the most food value.

Pioneer Ladoucoir Family Shown In Film Due For Release Soon

A Canadian department store has scored a "first" in Canada and "second in North America with the appointment of Miss Ruby Hamra as president of John Northway and Son Ltd. The story of the integration of the old and the news ways of life for Alberta Indian families is given understanding treatment in a new film made recently by the National Film Board. The film, shot entirely at Lac la Biche and based on a family living in that area, is scheduled for TV and 16 mm release about November.

"In this production we have tried to portray the differing paths of the old and the new ways," said unit manager Dan Bouvier. "It is the story of the family of Fabian Ladoucoir who still lives with his wife in the area, about a half a mile from Camp McGrane."

The script sends the two Ladoucoir sons on differing paths. The elder, Alexis, played by nimself, follows the old way of life, living with nature, fishing from the lake and giving a warm interpretation of the joy of peaceful living. But he takes time out to lament the gradual take-over of the modern world. Emile ,the younger son now living at Boyle, is portrayed by a neighbor, Emile Bourgue. In the film he is a farmer, established on the land with tractor and modern appliances.

Full attention is given to the work and recreation of both sons, and at the end the historic religious pilgrimage festival that has been going on annually in the lake area for almost a hundred years provides an excellent finale.

Throughout the shooting the camera crew was continually delighted with the beautiful lake scenery shown by the Ladoucoir family. "We were amazed that so much still existed, and we even saw pelicans on the lake," said Mr. Bouvoir.

He described the elder Ladoucoirs as a real pioneering couple truly indicative of the old way of life. "Their method of living is much the same as it has always been, and in some cases their perception of nature has amazed present-day experts.

The film was produced by Raymond Garceau with Dan Bouvier as unit manager. George Dufeaux and Tom Bird were cameramen and sound engineer was Max Hart.

'Kid' To Become Living Symbol Of 1961 Giving the 'United Way'

A flaxen-haired boy with a wondering look will soon be known and recognized by more people than any living hero, star or crook.

He is to ask Canadians to care and help, "the united way". He is the symbol of this year's united and federated appeals in 110 cities and communities throughout Canada.

His snapshot was found in the files of a day-care centre. He has no idea that his photograph inspired Ottawa artist George Fanais, a portrait painter of many prominent Canadian, to carry out the unusual commission to "paint a kid as the living symbol of volunteer welfare."

By early September the youngster will be looking at you from an estimated 50 million newspaper pages, posters, stickers, pamphlets and matchbooks. You will meet him on hundreds of billboards across the country, on millions of popcorn boxes in theatres from coast to coast, and on television sets in more than three and a half million homes

Even when the united appeals will be running hot with campaign fever and the enthusiasm of almost half a million canvassers, the boy will look at you in his chubby, quiet way to remind you that your donation is needed to maintain the voluntary welfare, health and recreation services your community has established for you and your fellow citizens.

The united appeals in 110 cities are expected to round up close to $32 million for a total of 1,800 national and local agencies.

This year, to stress the motives of prevention, care and help. and to tell the story of the agencies realistically, a normal, healthy boy was made the symbol. The youngster doesn't hold out his hand for charity He shows no tears and has no hollow cheeks. He is like most Canadian youngsters in need of care and guidance on his way to good and responsible adulthood. A pair of strong adult arms around him symbolize that need.

The united appeals are not made to finance handouts. Family and child welfare agencies, health services, Red Cross, the Canadian Institute for the Blind and Boy Scouts to name a few, do not as a rule give handouts.

Most of their budgets provide for trained staff, equipment and facilities to render services as efficiently and economically as possible. United appeal funds cover only from 40 to 60 percent of the agencies' operating costs. Fees, dues, grants and other income must make up the balance.

Perhaps the most significant factor in their success is that the appeals involve year after year hundreds of thousands of private citizens who learn the scope and purpose of voluntary welfare and spread their understanding of its vital role as a complement to public welfare.

As does public welfare, the private welfare agencies and services serve Canadians and help them to help themselves to their fair share of national prosperity. For public welfare we are taxed; for private welfare we give. Public welfare is a system we have elected; private welfar is the expression of our individual awarness that we live not by bread alone.

Edmonton has 46 agencies this year that will be participating in funds raised from the United Appeal From four to five thousand canvassers will commence their collections on Oct. 2. Quota will be set this week.

E. M. Blanchard will act as president, Henry Singer campaign chairman, Mrs. W. H. Schlesser chairman of the residential division and Tevieh H. Miller will be chairman of the professional division.

Farm prosperity is essential to national prosperity, and, at times, to having something on the table to eat.

Survey Shows Majority Favor No Nuclear Weapons

Prime Minister John Diefenbaker has acknowledged the receipt of results of a public opinion survey in Edmonton on the stationing of nuclear weapons on Canadian soil but he made no comment.

In the three-month survey of six thousand households, 24.6% were in favor of Canada obtaining nuclear weapons for her armed forces. Opposition came from 34.9% and 40.5% had no opinion.

The survey was conducted by the central volunteer bureau for the Edmonton committee for control of radiation hazards.

In a telegram to the prime minister the committee stated: "The survey indicates that in the city of Edmonton the majority of people with definite opinions on the subject share the concern of this committee of the danger of the spred of nuclear weapons to countries not already possessing them, including Canada".

The chairman of the committee, Mrs. Mary Van Stolk, said that with every additional nation which gets nuclear weapons the danger of a nuclear war increased. She added that Canada can set an example to other nations by refusing to arm herself with them and it is no exaggeration to say that she would in this way be helping to preserve the peace of the world.

Two classes of people are worthless to the present generation: Those who are too bad and those who are too good.
